President's Report March 2023.

Hello Members,

Welcome to 2023. I hope everyone had a Blessed Christmas and a fantastic New Year.

In December the Council invited our volunteers to a “Gift of Time Ceremony” and there acknowledged the time, over the year it amounted to 720 hours, our volunteers spend at the library helping people in their family history research. To show their appreciation the Council presented a Certificate of Appreciation for each volunteer to thank them for their selfless contribution to the community.

A big thank you to all the volunteers in our society who give endless hours each year to help the library provide a professional service in our Family History Room.

At the writing of this report we have held our February meeting where Jeff McGill gave a very interesting and informative presentation on his book “Rachel”, Jeff’s great-great grandmother, and the research that was undertaken to know her.

Our first course for the year is entitled “Beginner’s” and will be conducted at the library on Saturday 15 April beginning at 10.45am. If you are interested contact Denise by Email on social@cdfhs.org.au or phone on (02) 46258612 to make a booking.

Other courses we intend to conduct will be held at the library beginning at 10.45am on the following dates. The topics will be finalised at a later date;
Sunday 25th June – TBA.
Sunday 24th September - TBA.
Sunday 12th November - TBA.

My unusual ancestor by Sharon Greene.

How do you describe ‘unusual’ when referring to one of your own ancestors - without drawing some unwanted attention to your own shortcomings?!?

Unusual definition: not usual; uncommon, rare. Okay that doesn’t seem too incriminating. I guess statistically per head of population at the time that bushrangers were relatively rare; however the havoc they wreaked was somewhat greater.

While I will admit to some ‘unusual ancestors’ ... whale harpooner, midwife, seamstress of the flannels for our first Australian cricket team sent to UK, or bushranger. Let’s go with the bushranger.

John Peisley c1834-1862.

No one is certain of the date of birth for John however popular census is 1834. Born to Thomas (a convict) and Elizabeth (arrived free as an infant with her convict mother) Peisley, in the wiles of the Central West of a very wild NSW. With places like the Weddin Mountains and the Abercrombie Ranges, in his backyard to roam free, he became an accomplished bushman and horseman. When his father Thomas fell foul of the law for the alleged theft of a young Durham bull, claimed to be owned by Thomas Icely (a wealthy neighbour, large landowner and brother-in-law to local magistrate) at Coombing Park, near Carcoar. Found guilty Thomas was sent to Cockatoo Island (prison). Thomas’ wife and young family we left to the torment of their neighbour Icely and the local police (not always as they should be) all their cattle were sold and forfeited to the Government due to his conviction. It was only a matter of time before young John went rogue. Charged with horse stealing as a youth and late cattle duffing, with Frank Gardiner (a butcher by trade) he met when both serving time in Cockatoo prison.

Law and disorder ruled his life for many years and would finally see him give up all chance for a normal life. His last release from Cockatoo prison, to remain in the Scone district, instead turned his horse to his old and familiar home in the Abercrombie Mountains. He and Gardiner became partners in crime and they were responsible for many robberies-under-arms. He had always claimed not to rob the down-trodden poor settlers or workers, facing hard times similar to his family. Many of these people would hid and protect him as one of their own. By no means was he an angel he became adapt as a thief and many wealthy settlers and police feared him. But it was only a matter of time...

Hard drinking and hard living would finally catch up with him. Stephen and William Benyon were boys he had known from his youth and after a hard-drinking and possibly lonely Christmas, saw him visit the Benyon farm at Bigga. Things went from bad to worse after a game of hop, skip and jump turned foul. Disgruntled and possibly with a measure of resentment, he called William Benyon out, after a scuffle, a pistol shot resulted with Benyon being shot in the neck, poor William took three days to die, a painful and lingering death.

John Peisley fled and was later captured, tried in Carcoar Court House and then at the Bathurst Assizes before Justice Wise in March 1862, found guilty, he was sentenced to death. He was hung in the 'old' Bathurst Gaol (1830s-1875) on 25th April 1862. As was the tradition of the day, he was buried within the grounds of the gaol.

So ended the final chapter for my great, great, great-uncle John Peisley.

He was described in one the Police Gazette as being about 26 years of age, 5 feet 8½ inches high, pale complexion, flaxen hair, bluish grey eyes, long featured, nose a little pockmarked with scar on bridge, top of middle finger of left hand disfigured, arms and legs hairy. Another Police Gazette amended description after Benyon's murder reports: about 28 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches high, stout and well made, fresh complexion, very small light whiskers, quite bald on top of head and forehead, several recent marks on face, a mark from a blow of a spade on top of head, puffed and dissipated-looking from hard drinking, usually wears fashionable Napoleon boots, dark breeches, dark waistcoat and coat, large Albert gold watch-guard, sometimes wears a dark wig, and always carries a brace of revolvers [always wore a cabbage tree hat].

Edgar Penzig renowned author and ex-policeman, commissioned a sketch of Peisley for his 1987 book 'Frank Gardiner - the bushranger' and I have to say it's a fail! Peisley was only 28 years old when executed; the sketch by Frank Harding makes him look like 68 years. A term Penzig often uses about bushrangers: they were a flash Cove; I believe this is true of Peisley, a well dressed rogue or thief.

There is no debating he was a thief and a murderer but what makes a young teenager turn to crime, when he see his father falsely accused, (it was Peisley single brand on the Durham bull, not the two brandings Icely used – Icely's stock foreman testified to the single brand), their home, farm and cattle sold and the family scattered. Anger, loss of his father and family, the injustice because they were convict stock, against the wealthy landowner, he didn't stand a chance.

Unusual Jobs by Marie Holmes

My great grandfather's sister was born Elizabeth McGrath in 1849 at Shoalhaven. She married John Louttit there in 1875. John was a master mariner who was born at Stromness, Orkney Islands. John and Elizabeth and their three sons spent much of their time living at Balmain. John also spent much of his life at sea. He traded a great deal around the South Seas. One of his ships was the Ethel. John carried many of the Kanakas from the islands and took them to Queensland to work on the sugar farms. He was one of the Blackbirders who hijacked the islanders.

Adelaide Helen Holmes was born in Bristol England in 1832. She came to Australia and met Robert Reid whom she married in 1857 at Geelong Victoria. They lived in Victoria for a time and then made their way to Central Queensland where they took up a property known as Echo Hills near Springsure. Here their children were born. Three of their sons were later to go to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia where they had a bicycle shop. Later Robin, Ted and Charles went off on an expedition to the Congo Free State. They spent the latter part of their lives in Africa involved in mining, exploring and mapping large parts of Portuguese East Africa and the Belgian Congo. For a time, their brother Harrie was also with them. They were also into big game hunting. The brothers went into the Congo Free State in 1904. They mapped the Aruiwimi River for which they received an award from the Royal Geographic Society. While they were in the Belgian Congo, King Leopold commissioned the brothers to explore territory that had never previously been entered by white men. On one of these journeys they found a white elephant wallowing in a swamp. They carried out mineral research work surveying Mozambique country and later mining work for Nigeria New Territory Syndicate. In recent years I was fortunate to visit the house that Charles had in Buckinghamshire England. This house displayed many relics from their time in Africa. I think it would have been a bit scary to live there with weapons and relics in full view!

Unusual people in my family tree, Nathan "Nat" Phillips, "Stiffy " from the comedy duo, "Stiffy " & "Mo". By Jan Neaves.

My uncle Norman Nathan Phillips had an uncle Nathan Robert Phillips, born in 1883 in Brewarrina, NSW. Nat was born into a Jewish family of travelling salespeople with an English background. His parents were Louis and Rebecca. Nat grew up as a humorous and agile child who was performing on stage from the age of 5, tumbling and dancing. He was destined for fame and fortune.

Although less famous than his partner "Mo" (Roy Rene), Nat as "Stiffy " went on to perform on stage, film and radio around the world in the comedy duo, "Stiffy " and " Mo". They travelled to Europe, USA and even India. Nat also managed a troupe, wrote plays and skits and produced variety performances. Plays can still be viewed in the Film Museum in Canberra and skits are still on YouTube.

Nat Phillips married twice, to Iris Max and May " Daisy" Merritt, who performed with him on stage and film.

Nat and Roy were known as the Merry Monarchs of Mirth and are credited as inventing the first Australian larrikin characters, forerunners of duos like Hoges and Strop. They entertained millions in times that were otherwise sad and depressing, during World War 1.

Nathan Phillips died aged 49 in Paddington, Sydney, in 1932. Always a clown, a pioneer of Australian Theatre.

Unusual member in my family. By a member.

My relative was born in Durham in the north of England in 1881, his mother died giving birth to him. The baby was cared for by his maternal grandparents and his father.

The Durham lad began work at the mine aged 12. Later his father remarried and the lad didn't get on well with his new mother. He moved from the home and rented rooms at various places whilst continuing to work down the mine.

A friend had recently returned home from America and told his mates life must be better living elsewhere than Durham so they decided to come to Australia. As well as having little education the Durham lad was deaf in one ear. In 1907 four young men shared a steerage cabin and sailed to Sydney Australia.

The Durham lad only knew coal mining and headed for the Newcastle coal fields and found work in the Hunter Valley. Life was improving, sunshine, money in his pocket and he had met a nice young lady. They married in 1910 and had 8 children, sadly three of them died, the first, a 12 months old baby, their 13 year old son was electrocuted when he climbed a telegraph pole and touched the electricity wires whilst trying to locate the family cow. The last was a daughter aged 20 who had just finished her nursing exams and came first in the state.

In 1916 the Durham lad received a Deputy Certificate of competency and became a Deputy after sitting an exam at Newcastle College. Later he was appointed a Justice of the Peace. They lived for some time at West Wallsend then moved to a small village where a new mine was about to open and built a small house. Unfortunately the mine failed to open, the recession arrived. The Durham lad was always interested in local activities, he was Treasurer of the Life Saving Club and the Social Club and dubbed the Mayor of the Village.

The Durham lad and his wife celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary, his wife died in 1966. The Durham lad died aged 97.

Would I say the Durham lad was "Unusual"? I would say more brave and courageous and a man of his times.

Research Officer's Report

Hi members,

A number of requests have been received and are being attended to, the recent request the Rolfe family who moved from England to Macquarie Fields in 1960/61, this is from a Clare Wilson, no indication where Clare resides.

DRONE PHOTO St John's

The numbering of images is continuing, we have experienced a delay through a personal problem that Kevin Rixon is dealing with.

CEMETERY DATA BASE,

At the last meeting there were 2,951 entries, as at last Wednesday there were 6,164, I consider good progress.

Dennis has completed the transfer of the family history D V D to the database and so this has boosted the numbers.

St Peter's, Sharon is working through the Jim Munro headstone cards and the burial information from Glenalvon

St Bede's Appin, Campbelltown Methodist-Congregational Cemetery - Wayne CAHS is working through the Jim Munro cards and the D V D, Wayne cannot download the database to his computer and so is doing the work for when he can download. Wayne has family buried in the Methodist cemetery and has prepared a plan of the graves for future reference.

St Mark's Appin, Stephen, CAHS is also working with the Jim Munro cards, the D V D and burial information from Glenalvon he is able to download the D V D

St John's Campbelltown, my task, I am well into the letter K, recording the burials and confirming the headstone both from the St Mary's register and the Jim Munro cards.

HELP,

If members would like to sit at their computer and record the B D M information onto the Jim Munro cards, I have cards with me, it is boring and if you have been into the B D M site recently and experienced the " I am not a robot" it is more boring, you are asked to identify, bridges, motor bikes, traffic lights etc.

Thanks to everyone for the help and encouragement, the task will be completed.
