Situation Vacant

Would you like to become more involved with the work of the society? If so, we would like to hear from you.

Everyone who works for the society does so on a voluntary basis, with some giving just an hour or two each month, while others devote much of their free time to the running of the society.

We are always looking for volunteers.

Please contact our Volunteer Coordinator, Robert Palmer at:

volunteer@cdfhs.org.au

From the President's Pen. . . .

Dear Members

I find myself sitting here doing this report and realising that Christmas is only around the corner again, where did this year go to .

The signage we have been working on this year as a way of promoting the Society to the public is now finished and we have a nice A frame for the front of Library and a sign for the Family History Room.

We will be running more courses next year at the Library, these have been well attended and as they are open to the public, they are also a good way to promote ourselves to the public.

The money we received from the VSEG grant has now been spent and the society now has a new Audio System and a lovely new Camera.

This year it was my great pleasure to present a Life Time Membership Award to Jillian Murphy who is our Membership Office and has been for 14 yrs and on behalf of our society I would like to thank Jillian for all her hard work over those years.

Regards
Denise Baxter
President CDFHS Inc.

Meeting Mr Fisher

© Verlie Fowler, 2013.

It was a chill winter's evening that sent a shiver up the spine. A large crowd had gathered at the bottom of Queen Street, near the bridge, with its white-painted rail gleaming in the moonlight. Emily Cottage and a handful of tiny cottages that lined Camden Road were clothed in darkness. As numbers grew, I joined others who spilled over onto the adjoining paddock and ventured a short distance along Fisher's Ghost creek towards the railway line. It was the 17th of June and a buzz of excitement filled the air, as we awaited the appearance of Fisher's ghost. It was a quest unfulfilled. P'raps our chatter and laughter scared off his ghostly presence; we did not meet Mr Fisher that evening.

Half a century later I was tracking my ancestors, and discovered a young English woman named Sarah Hall. In 1815 her husband Thomas was tried for stealing a gelding, cart and harness. Found guilty, he scored a life sentence and was transported to New South Wales. Sarah had two young children, aged two and five years old, and was pregnant again. Faced with poverty and debtor's prison, Sarah gathered up her two daughters and sailed on another ship. Her third daughter (Harriet) was born at sea, and was a babe in arms when Sarah set foot in Sydney. Thomas arrived on the convict transport 'Ocean' a few days later.

Thomas Hall was employed as a limeburner who gathered shells from middens around Sydney Harbour, but in May 1821 he went missing, presumed drowned. Or perhaps he had been taken by a shark. By then the couple had five children and Sarah was heavily pregnant again. A month later (June) three of the daughters were admitted to Parramatta Female Orphanage. Sarah's little boy was less than two years old, too young to be admitted to an orphanage. In July Sarah gave birth to another daughter. Those were desperate times for Sarah, and it is not surprising to learn she quickly remarried.

Sarah's second husband was William 'Milky' Jones.

William 'Milky' Jones was transported on the 'Baring' after receiving a life sentence for 'burglariously breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Frederick Fisher' at No. 8 Nelson's Place, in the City Road, in the parish of St Luke's, London in the early hours of 9 June 1814. At the time of the burglary Jones was eighteen years old, living with and working for his father, a milkman – hence the name ‘Milky’. Together with an accomplice named William Burgess, Jones stole a large quantity of valuables as the Fisher family lay sleeping upstairs.

A tantalising question remains. Was the victim of the robbery the same Frederick Fisher who was a year later convicted of having forged banknotes in his possession and transported on the ‘Atlas’, ending up in Campbelltown? If the two men named Frederick Fisher were one and the same, it may explain why he resorted to handling forged currency. At the trial of William Jones, Fisher complained ‘a great many things have not been found that were taken away... I lost above an hundred pounds.’ The crime devastated him financially.

Then again, perhaps the similarity of names is just a coincidence.

If only I could magically transport myself back to the 1820s and meet Campbelltown’s Frederick Fisher. I would try to establish whether he was the same Mr Fisher robbed by Milky Jones. And then I would relate to him how, as a teenager, I once joined a large crowd who gathered in festive mood on the banks of Fisher’s Ghost Creek, in the hope of meeting him.

Oh, by the way, perhaps I should explain that my grandmother (Nanna Whitten) was a great-granddaughter of Harriet Hall, the lass born at sea just prior to her mother Sarah’s arrival in Sydney in January 1816.

Record of the trial of William Jones on 26 October 1814 [t18141026-4] can be viewed on www.oldbaileyonline.org

Emily Cottage

Emily Cottage 1998 – Marie Holmes

Emily Cottage, today privately owned, is the small stone house on the corner of Camden, Old Menangle and Art Gallery roads in Campbelltown. This site was once the junction of Appin, Old Menangle and Camden Roads. There have been reports that the cottage was once a toll house. However these reports have not been verified. However the simple layout and the similarity of design to known toll-houses has been a reason for this claim along with the fact that it was sited on the junction of three important roads. Style of architecture and the building of the cottage are indications that the cottage may have been built as early as 1820.

Another suggestion that has been made is that the building was at one time used by the military. This may account for the name of Guard House.

The land on which Emily Cottage stands was part of a grant of 140 acres made to Joseph Phelps. It was then sold to William Bradbury in 1817. There is a building shown on a Bradbury Park subdivision map about 1844 (Goodall). Carol Liston has expressed the opinion that the cottage may have been an outbuilding of the Joiners Arms, a weatherboard inn licenced by Michael Byrne (of Glenalvon fame).

Joiners Arms built by Michael Byrne – CAHS c 1916

Emily Cottage was classified by the National Trust in 1981. The house has a gabled roof, scalloped and pierced barge boards and a central dormer window. The front wall was built of rubblestone and originally rendered. During the time Auchinachie's ownership an out of control truck damaged the front wall and it was rebuilt using block stone. At the rear of the cottage is the original small detached weatherboard kitchen.

Those who lived there.

Very little is known of those who lived in Emily Cottage during its early years.

Circa 1858 to 1864, Thomas and Susannah Ryder lived there from 1858 to 1864 and their son Joseph Henry Ryder was born there in 1859. Thomas and Susannah and their eldest son, came free from Norfolk, England arriving in December 1852 on the ship Hydaspes. Thomas was a shoemaker and a lay preacher.

Charles and Emma Etchells and their children took up residence there some time after 1868 when they moved from Appin. Charles was a carpenter and joiner. Two of his sons, Frank and Harry, were settlers at Eckersley and brewed moonshine using stills they had hidden under rock overhangs. They used the clear sparkling water that cascaded from above. Most of the rum they produced was taken by pack horses overland to Bulli for sale to miners there. However some of this illegal brew also made its way to Campbelltown.

The Denmead family lived in the cottage in the 1870s and 1880s. James Denmead came to the Colony of New South Wales as a convict in 1834. He came from Frome in Somerset, England. He was 18 years old when first sentenced to death but had his sentence commuted to transportation for life. He also spent some time on Norfolk Island and Pinchgut for further transgressions. He married Eliza Daly in 1849. They were to become the parents of twelve children. Two of these were Mary Ann born in 1861 and Emily born in 1871. Imagine such a large family living in such a small cottage.

James Denmead was a butcher by trade. An 1844 plan of southern Queen Street indicates that there may have been a building attached to Emily Cottage. Perhaps during the Denmead time this may have been used as a butcher shop. A photo circa 1950 depicts windows that resemble Victorian-style shop windows.

Denmead advertised in the Campbelltown News –

One advertisement in the paper of 14 February 1880 gives the information that

James Denmead is a general and family butcher on corner of Main Street. He is the cheapest butcher's shop in Campbelltown. He invites people to come and prove this.

When Mary Ann was twenty –one she died on 11 February 1883 after being struck by lightning through an upstairs window. Reported sightings of a ghost lead people to believe the cottage is haunted.

Emily Denmead was crowned Queen of the May at a local May Day Parade. In 1891 she married Henry (Ted) Wearne of Currant Tree Forest (now Eckersley) who like the hell brothers, allegedly turned to moonshining and on the proceeds he raised horses on his property in the Burragorang Valley.

James Denmead died in 1894 and was buried in St John's R C Cemetery, Campbelltown.

At one time the mounted police had their detachment there when they were trying to suppress bushranging.

In 1880s the house was gutted by fire and was repaired. However traces of the fire may still be seen on the large roof beams.

Jim Munro recorded that Bartley Haydon said that Fieldhouse's baker, Mr Braybrook lived at Emily Cottage for a time.

Earl Haydon and his family lived at Emily Cottage from about 1921 to 1936. This family included Mr and Mrs Haydon, three sons and a daughter. The rooms downstairs were a dining room and a bedroom while upstairs were two bedrooms. The separate wooden kitchen had a laundry at one end. The walkway between the house and kitchen was later filled in using weatherboards to make accommodation for the grandfather, George Haydon. A photograph circa 1950 shows a window in the southern wall linking the house to the kitchen. Edna Wonson, nee Haydon says that Emily Cottage was a lovely cool place in the summer because of its thick stone walls. Edna's father had two large draught horses and some ponies and nearby were some stables with a feed room. There was also a tennis court. As the boys got older one of the stables was converted into a room where the boys could sleep.

Earl Haydon and his draught horses did ploughing around the district. They were also used to construct dams, cart bricks and work on the roads. Alf Cooper tells the story of how sometimes the draught horses got out of the paddock and Mrs Haydon would ask him to watch out for them as he delivered his papers. Usually he found them near the old town reservoir at the top of Allman Street. The horses would trot down Allman Street, turn into Queen Street and from there find their way back to Emily Cottage – they knew their way home!

Near Emily Cottage was Quondong formerly the catholic schoolhouse but at this time lived in by Kate Keihone who wore lace up boots and rented out rooms. Between Emily Cottage and Quondong was Pett's Picnic Ground.

Antique dealers, Mr and Mrs George Auchinachie owned Emily Cottage for many years and in 1995 after her husband died, Mrs Auchinachie sold the cottage.

The National Trust describes the cottage in this way.

A jolly little cottage which is well-known and well-loved picturesque feature of the town, with special townscape value from its setting at the (former) intersection of three old and important roads (to Appin, Camden and to Sydney).

When a student of Architecture researched Emily Cottage, he was of the opinion that the building pre-dated any other building in Street. The National Trust states that the shuttered windows and front door of Emily Cottage date from the late 18th century

In the 1990s the cottage was in use as a tea house and craft shop run by Shirley Kendall.

Naming of Emily Cottage.

There has always been considerable discussion re the naming of Emily Cottage. At one time many thought it was named for Emily Denmead who died as a result of lightning striking her during a storm as she looked out the window of the cottage. The problem with this theory is that it was not Emily who was struck by lightning but her older sister Mary Ann.

Another story is that an old sea captain once lived there and that he named it Emily Cottage in honour of his brig, The Emily.

Acknowledgement

I would like to acknowledge Verlie Fowler's article on Emily Cottage as one source of information I used.
